RACE GOES TO RESOLUTE AFTER VANITIE STOPS TO PICK UP MAN OVERBOARD

Sailor in Stiff Oilskins in a Blinding Rain Tumbled Into a Foaming Sea.

NO RACE TO-MORROW.

A 25-Mile Wind, Rough Water and a Downpour Met at the Start To-day.

ASSOCIATED PRESS BOAT. ON Glen Cove, June 4.—(By wireless.)—Alexander Cochran's cup defense candidate, the sloop Vanitie, was forced to retire from to-day's trial race with the Resolute because one of her crew fell overboard and by the time he was rescued the Vanitie was hopelessly behind. With her rival out of the race, Resolute sailed alone and won the contest after the regatta committee had signalled that she need sail only half of the eighteen-mile course.

Ill-luck met Vanitie after she had covered less than four miles of the race and before the boats had rounded the first mark to windward. As she tacked into a strong south wind her deck was at a sharp angle and one of the men on board, blindfolded by rain and spray and hampered by his oilskins, slipped over the side. The sound was covered with whitecaps and in order to save the man's life Vanitie hove to. A life-belt was thrown to the struggling sailor, but much time was lost before he could be dragged on board. In the meantime Resolute had an easy run to her first mark. Having no competitor and not caring to risk her rigging in the blow she took down her spinnaker.

She rounded the windward mark at 1:35.44, broke out her spinnaker and headed back alone.

The mishap to Vanitie occurred in the lee of the Long Island shore. Though Vanitie was in the lead at the time, Resolute was flat overhauling her. Resolute crossed the finish line at 1:55.47, unofficial time.

The official starting times were: Vanitie, 1:01.21; Resolute, 1:01.57.

The next race between the Resolute and Vanitie will be sailed on Saturday under the auspices of the Larchmont Yacht Club.

A hard rain made the third trial race between the cup defenders seem doubtful to-day until the Regatta Committee hoisted the signal flag for a start. The Committee had watched and waited for an encouraging sign and had previously signalled a postponement until a later hour. Meanwhile the Resolute dropped her mooring buoy and in tow of her tender went out to the starting line. It was still raining hard at 11:30, but the clouds were lifting some under a stiff breeze.

The Vanitie followed, running out of Glen Cove Harbor under bare poles without the assistance of launchers or tender. Spectators commented on the nerve of the yachtman, who seemed eager to sail their lightly built boats in a wind that was almost a gale.

The rain was then falling in torrents and a heavy sea was running down the Sound which was covered with foam.

The course was again to windward and leeward. It was 4½ miles across the Sound to Matinecock Point and a run back with a repeat, nine miles for the round, eighteen miles for the course.

The wind fell to about twenty-five miles. It was very thick on the water. The excursion fleet was out in good numbers, despite the heavy weather. The Resolute had her whole main-sail up crossing the line. Vanitie had one reef. The wind was from the south and there was a bit of a sea running down the Sound.

MRS. POSS DANCED THE "TANGO JAG" WITH MR. THORN

Subway Station Cement Floor Gave Them the Opportunity, Detective Says.

The tango jag is the newest thing among tango-maniacs.

Its discovery is not due to a dancer, but to John J. Kelley, detective, whose description of it made jurors and spectators in Justice Donnelly's part of the Supreme Court laugh uproariously at the trial of Frank R. Poss's divorce suit against his pretty suburban wife Lillian.

Although supplied with every luxury that a $1,000 a month apartment on Riverside Drive furnishes, Mrs. Poss, so the detective related, preferred her dances in the company of Percy M. Thorn, wealthy coal dealer, Mr. Poss's Vice-President of the Detroit American League Baseball Club and a stockholder in the Ford, Cadillac and other automobile companies.

Referring constantly to his little note book wherein were recorded trips that Mrs. Poss and Mr. Thorn took in the former's velvet upholstered electric runabout, Kelley said that although he had a hard time following the pair about the city he found that invariably they went to a cafe where dancing lasted the longest.

"One evening last February," said Kelley, "Mrs. Poss and Thorn went into Archambault's at Broadway and One Hundred and Second street. That is a cafe with dancing and drinks."

"Did they dance?" asked Attorney Abe Levy, who is looking after the interests of Mr. Poss.

"Very much," replied the detective, "and I am an judge they are both good dancers. They never seemed to get enough of it."

"Well, what did they do after the dancing stopped?" asked the lawyer.

"Their faces got long," said the witness, "and they walked disappointedly out of the cafe."

"They went where?" continued the lawyer.

"Down into the One Hundred and Third street subway station," replied the detective.

"What did they do there?" was asked.

"Well, they were under the influence—the witness stuttered—"they were jolly. They acted funny—they danced around on the cement platform and Mr. Thorn would dance her onto the scales and off again, then he'd take her in his arms and then they'd dance around some more."

"Oh, ho!" exclaimed Mr. Levy, who, though short and plump, has a record as a tangoist: "they had what one would call a tango jag."

Kelley was with other detectives on a night when, led by Mr. Poss, they raided the Poss apartment in the Clarendon, Eighty-sixth street and Riverside Drive, where are also quartered the families of Elihu Root and W. R. Hearst.

Thorn was found in the apartment, very much abashed, but not half so much as Mrs. Poss, the witness said. The detective described an attack made upon Thorn by Poss and then he was asked to describe Mrs. Poss's attire. The detective did. It amounted to almost nothing—her attire—he went on to explain.

JEALOUS OF HIM, NOT OF ME, SAYS MISS LANGDON

Dr. Sears Seeks Revenge, Not Divorce, and Wants to Be a Mrs. Eddy.

GREATEST MAN LIVING.

World Would Admit It If It Knew His Powers and Virtues.

With an artificiality of voice and manner such as usually is not found off the stage, Miss Pauline Langdon, about whom the troubles of the rival Sears New Thought Churches now centre, took the witness stand in Part III. of the Supreme Court to-day to be cross-examined again in the suit of Dr. Julia Seton Sears against Franklin Warren Sears, M. P., for divorce. "M. P." as the healer explained yesterday, means "Master of Psychology" and he conferred the degree on himself. Miss Langdon is the co-respondent.

The rainy day brought many changes in costume to the setting for to-day's session. The co-respondent wore a dark blue dress with a waist of cerise silk. She wore a pompadour with a black velvet chin strap. White kid shoes matched her gloves. There were similar sombre alterations in both coverts of angels. Dr. Sears, the plaintiff, appeared in an elaborate gown of royal purple with bronze shoes. She wore a big pectoral cross on her breast.

DID NOT NEED CHAPRON WHEN WITH MR. SEARS.

Lawyer Hiccox started the cross-examination of Miss Langdon.

Q. How much did you pay Madame Renault, your chapron, on your trip abroad with Mr. Sears? A. Oh, I didn't pay her. She didn't want anything. I entertained her once or twice after we got in and gave her a little present.

Q. She didn't chaperon you when Mr. Sears was in your stateroom alone with you when you were in your berth? A. No, I didn't need to be chaperoned when Mr. Sears was with me. Neither would anybody else.

Q. When he is around no chapron is needed by you? A. By me no anybody else.

Q. What did he do to you when he treated you alone in your stateroom? A. He gave me a treatment.

Q. What do you mean treatment? A. You know New Thought as well as I do.

Q. I'm not asking what I know; I want an answer to the question? A. He held his hand on my head and went into a silence.

Q. How long? A. Oh, I don't know how long; five or ten minutes.

Q. Do you think receiving a married man in your hotel room was discreet? A. Possibly, Mr. Hiccox, it wouldn't be if you were the married man. It was perfectly proper for Mr. Sears.

The witness broke into a torrent of argument and invective in personal squabbling with the lawyer. Mr. Hiccox couldn't stop her. Mr. Fitzhugh couldn't stop her. The stenographer begged mutely for mercy while her fingers ran through the pages. Justice Giegehrick rapped with his gavel and gave sharp orders. She rattled on in a tone anything but girlish.

NOT A DIVORCE CASE BUT REVENGE, SHE SAYS.

The gist of the whirling blast of angry words was something like this: "No. You know this isn't a divorce case. It is revenge. Mrs. Sears isn't jealous of me. She is jealous of Mr. Sears and his success. She went

CHARLESTONIAN WINS STAKE RACE AT BELMONT PARK

Takes Lead at Eighth Pole and Disposes of Gainer Easily—Good Attendance.

BELMONT PARK RACE TRACK, NEW YORK, June 4.—The Larchmont stake feature of to-day's card here went to the credit of J. W. Meuser, the South Carolina millionaire. After trailing the pace of Early Rose and Figginny to the stretch, Charlestonian came through the bunch at the eighth pole and won going away. He beat Gainer, the second horse, on his merits, thus disposing of the argument that followed their nose finish in the Withers. Figginny was a good third. The Gifford Cochran colt ran a good race, chasing Early Rose in the early part. Thornhill and Black Broom were never serious contenders.

A rainy day crowd of 3,000 saw the race. August Belmont arrived in time for the Larchmont after speaking in town before the Chamber of Commerce.

The opening event saw James Butler's popular colts carried to the front by Kilkenny Boy. Kederia got him off flying and he led the procession all the way. At the end he was only galloping a length in front of Double Eagle, while Trojan, a staminate of Double Eagle, was third, six lengths back. Sea Shell was the tip of the race and was played heavily. Distant Shore secured badly in the early running and finished close to the inside rail.

SECOND RACE.

The field of eleven carded for the second race was reduced by scratches five, with Grover Hughes an odds on choice. The favorite broke early and led all the way, to win easily by three lengths. The real combat was for the place between Honey Bee and Alabama. They had a stride-for-stride battle down the stretch. Alabama weakened in the last few strides and Honey Bee got the place by a head.

THIRD RACE.

Joe McCahey brought Alabama home six lengths in front of the field of two-year-olds in the third. It was no contest as far as he was concerned. Royal Blue and Hectograph ducked early, leaving the pursuit of Alabama to Roly and Harlequin. At the end Harlequin was a comfortable second in front of Roly.

FIFTH RACE.

Skihbeen, the outsider, won the steeplechase after following the pace of Lyander and Meadow Lark until after they were over the last jump. Skihbeen really won on the flat. After Abdon fell there were but

SCOTLAND YARD GUARDS PRINCE HENRY AT ETON

Ruler Has to Give Up Morning Rides—People Demand Severe Sentences for Women Who Break Laws.

LONDON, June 4.—A militant suffragette plot to kidnap Prince Henry, King George's third son, a fourteen-year-old youth who is attending Eton, the great English public school, has brought to a crisis the suffragette campaign of crime. Reprisals on the part of the Government and the law-abiding element are now in order.

The young Prince, a popular schoolboy, is constantly under guard of Scotland Yard detectives, who never let him out of their sight. These men are under instructions to protect him at all hazards. The royal family, much exercised by the threats of the militants to kidnap the young Prince and hold him as a hostage until the right of franchise is granted women, is responsible for the detective guard.

An attempt recently to "hold up" King George at to-night's court of Buckingham Palace was the latest conspiracy charged to the militant suffragettes. The Evening Standard, which is responsible for the story, says the police discovered elaborate plans for securing access to the court, including forged cards of admission.

PLOT IS CREDITED TO LEADER OF MILITANTS.

The alleged plot was credited to the fertile brain of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the militant suffragette leader, but the timely discovery led to such precautions being taken, it is believed, as to render it impossible of realization.

The police arrangements at the court proved irksome for the King's guests. The procession of carriages arriving at the Palace had to run the gamut of a cordon of plain clothes detectives and police stationed at all approaches.

Every carriage was held up and every lady had to produce credentials. Detectives acquainted with the features of the leading militant suffragettes were posted at every vantage point in the spacious apartment to scrutinize the moving throng.

Scotland Yard officers also are keeping the most rigid supervision over the house in which Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst is recuperating from her last sojourn in Holloway Jail, from which she was released under the "cat and mouse" act after a hunger strike. The leader of the militants chose for her asylum a house directly opposite Buckingham Palace, where King George and Queen Mary are in residence. The palace guard of detectives has been doubled. The King, fearing an embarrassing scene with the "furie," has abandoned his daily morning canter in Hyde Park.

POLICE TOLERANCE WILL BE LAID ASIDE NOW.

The more recent serious outbreaks of the "mad woman," which culminated yesterday in a murderous attack on a keeper in the Dore Gallery in New Bond street, have aroused the Government. The abandonment of their cardinal principle that they would neither kill nor maim people in their campaign for enfranchisement
